

MONTREAL is in the throes of a delicious scandal. Alphonso Keroack, one of the most opulent manufacturers of the city, was to be married to the daughter of a millionaire but suit for seduction entered against him by Miss Emelie Leste, has interfered with his plans. He and Miss Leste were brought up in the same town together. In time she developed into a beautiful woman and her parents, being wealthy, gave her all that money could offer. However, she became a mistress in a Montreal judge's family. There Keroack made her acquaintance, seduced her, kept her some time as his mistress and finally threw her off, saying that he was about to be married. This precipitated a suit against him and the sequel to it is unknown.